SEC. M'ADOO EXPLAINS THE FARM LOAN LAW

In An Interview Cabinet Official States the Good Features of the Act

"The farm loan bill," said Secretary McAdoo, "creates a system under which the farmers of the United States will be able, for the first time in the history of the country, to borrow money on farm lands at low rates of interest on long time, namely, from five to forty years, and by means of annual dues or installments not only to pay the interest, but also to retire the principal of the loan at maturity. This piece of legislation is comparable in its benefits and in the magnitude of the industry it will affect, with the federal reserve act, but it is in many respects far more important to the country than the federal reserve act.

"It is a statement of an old and recognized truth to say that the farming industry is the very basis of the life and prosperity of the nation, and this statement is more particularly true of the United States, because of its agricultural development which, although great, can be made vastly greater if our farmers are provided with the long-time credits at low rates of interest, which are so essential to the further development of the farming industry. There is no inducement to greater farm development unless it can be made profitable, and it cannot be made profitable unless the necessary capital is available always to farmers upon reasonable terms. It is amazing that since the establishment of our government until this time, a period of 127 years, absolutely nothing has been done by way of legislation to assure abundant farm credits on reasonable terms to our farmers.

"On the contrary, they have been the preferred sufferers from a scarcity of money for farm development and agricultural purposes, and have been, as a class, particularly oppressed by high, and oftentimes extortionate rates of interest and shadowed constantly by the fear of mortgage foreclosures. The Farm Loan act, or rural credits bill, will emancipate the farmer from the disadvantages he has so long endured. It will, when fully established, unquestionably provide an abundance of credits, available at all times, to farmers in all parts of the country upon long term mortgages at low rates of interest, with a provision for repayment of the principal in easy annual installments. In fact, under the new system, the farmer ought to be able to pay the interest on his mortgage and the principal of his debt through annual installments, which will be less than the straight interest charges he has been paying on his mortgage under the old system.

"The establishment of this rural credits system will re-attract to the farms vast numbers of our people who have been unable to engage in agriculture because it has been impossible to secure money on farm obligations. It means for all the people of the country unlimited benefits because they will prosper in direct proportion to the prosperity and strength of the farming industry of the country."

NO JINGOS WANTED

Just now, owing to the heated agitation on both sides, for a strong military preparedness and against it, we scent once more pungent whiffs of the political "Jingo", who grasps at every new excuse he can, to arouse excitement and gain followers.

Some of these champions no doubt are sincere, even if misguided—but many may be only seeking, like those of the '60s, to get into office, gain notoriety and sway public expenditures their way.

The arguments of the honest, but misinformed will be thrashed out before the great American people, but Heaven protect us one and all from the jingo. On the redhot heels of the terrible Civil War, like a graven-headed, cloven-footed monster, lead by the dominating personality of one "Stoneman".

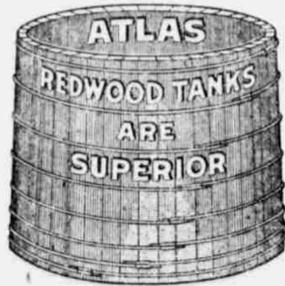

He invaded the southland, a country that had been peaceful, happy and prosperous before the outbreak, but now was reduced to misery, heartache and want. He took advantage of the new, easily lead and wholly ignorant vote of the black man, making his childish credulity alluring promises that he never intended to fulfill.

His object, of course, was to steal power and pilfer an entry into the treasuries, regardless of the distress and cost to suffering humanity his dirty work wrought.

He did not succeed, because God and Civilization arose in their wrath against him; but he worked evil enough before he was cut off—and his record is one of the black, shameful epochs of American history.

His dangerous machinations are all vividly depicted in The Birth of a Nation, that attraction of the century, which comes to the Imperial Theatre on October 16, 17 and 18.

See and study this living, deifying witness of the past and you won't tolerate jingos in any form.

Will outlast several steel tanks or several tanks made from other material, and cost less money. These tanks will keep the water cooler in summer and warmer in winter. Send for price list today.
